Research

Development Zone Policies, Industrial Agglomeration, and Household Income: Evidence from China

Revised & Resubmit (JRS)

- Effect of development-zone policies on county-level household income and the mechanism via policy incentives and firm agglomeration; staggered DID, PSM-DID, event study and Honest-DID on 2000–2017 county data
- Finding: the tax-incentive-driven attraction model significantly crowds out household income

Population Agglomeration and the Missing Consumption Dividen: Exclusionary Urbanization and Hukou Segmentation in Chinese Cities

Revised & Resubmit (HSSC)

- Net effect of population density on household consumption under hukou restrictions; two-way fixed effects and IV estimation on 2003–2022 prefecture-level panel data
- Finding: hukou restrictions amplify the negative effect of population density on consumption
